

NATION'S DUTY FOR CHILDREN

President Sends To Congress Strong Message On The Important Subject This Morning.

FROM THE REPORT OF CONFERENCE

Chief Executive Points How Closely The Interests Of The Country Are Involved In Welfare And Development Of The Dependent Child.

Washington, Feb. 15.—Legislation, which, it is believed, will make an important epoch in the future of the nation, is recommended by President Roosevelt to congress today in a special message by President Roosevelt, which makes a strong plea in the interest of children coming within this class.

Of particular importance is the president's recommendation for the establishment of a Federal Children's bureau; the enactment of such legislation will bring the laws and policies in regard to the care of dependent children in all federal legislation into harmony and certain legislation in behalf of dependent children in the District of Columbia. The president believes that such legislation is important not only for the welfare of the children immediately concerned, but important as setting an example by the national government to the several states of the union, which should be able to look to the nation for leadership in such matters.

The president also transmits with his message to congress a copy of the conclusions, together with the full text of the proceedings of the recent conference held on the care of dependent children, in accordance with the request of that organization. Declaring that their conclusions "constitute a plan, constructive, and progressive program of child-care work," the president says that if "given full effect by the proper agencies, existing methods and practices in almost every community would be profoundly and advantageously modified."

Statistics showing the large number of dependent children in the country are presented by Mr. Roosevelt. "Each of these children represents either a potential additivity to the productive capacity of the nation," the president says, "or, if allowed to suffer from neglect, a potential additivity to the destructive forces of the community. The ranks of criminals and other enemies of society are recruited from children bereft of their natural homes and left without sufficient care. The interests of the nation are involved in the welfare of this army of children no less than in our great material affairs."

"In urging a children's bureau, one of whose duties will be to investigate a report upon all matters pertaining to the welfare of children and child life, the president points out that "the national government is the only agency which can effectively conduct such general inquiries as are needed for the benefit of all our citizens."

"It is not only discreditable to us as a people that there is now no organized and authoritative source of information upon these subjects relating to child life," declares the president, "but in the absence of such information as should be supplied by the federal government many abuses have gone unchecked; for public sentiment, with its great corrective power, can only be aroused by full knowledge of the facts." He adds that there are few things more vital to the welfare of the nation than accurate and dependable knowledge of the best methods of dealing with children, particularly those handicapped by unfortunate.

"The president makes a strong plea for keeping the family intact and declares that poverty alone should not disrupt the home."

Substantially the message was as follows:

On January 25-26, 1900, there assembled in this city, on my invitation, a conference on the care of dependent children. From nearly every state in the union men and women actively engaged in the care of dependent children, and they represented all the leading religious bodies.

The subject considered is one of high importance to the well-being of the nation. The census bureau reported in 1900 that there were in orphanages and children's homes about 92,000 dependent children. There are probably 60,000 more (the precise number never having been ascertained), in private homes, either on board or in adopted homes provided by the generosity of foster parents. In addition to these there were 25,000 children in institutions for juvenile delinquents.

Each of these children represents either a potential additivity to the productive capacity of the nation, or, if allowed to suffer from neglect, a potential additivity to the destructive forces of the community. The ranks of criminals and other enemies of society are recruited from children bereft of their natural homes and left without sufficient care. The interests of the nation are involved in the welfare of this army of children no less than in our great material affairs."

The recommendation of President Roosevelt that the Maine be raised has met with full approval here, not because the Cubans are anxious to lose their most famous monument of their past struggle for independence, but because they wish to give proper burial to the bodies of the six hundred sailors that are now in the bulk of the battleship. At the same time, the wreck is a menace to navigation in its present form and occupies a part of the best anchorage in the harbor.

Observance at Capital. Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—The anniversary of the Maine disaster was observed today with mourning services in St. Patrick's church and a religious service in the afternoon at Arlington National cemetery, where the graves of the victims were decorated with flowers. ### MONTANA SMELTER CASE IS UP AGAIN

Farmers Dear Lodge Valley Claim Gases From Anaconda Plants Are Ruining Vegetation.

Helena, Mont., Feb. 15.—The so-called Smelter Case, wherein the farmers of Deer Lodge Valley sought to have the smelters of the Anaconda Company at Anaconda, the largest in the world, closed because the gases therefrom were ruinous to vegetation, was called on for another hearing in court today for another hearing in an effort to devise a satisfactory settlement with the little injury as possible to the parties concerned. The immediate purpose of the hearing is to ascertain if there is not a possible means of so treating the fumes that as to reduce the quantities of arsenic now suffered to be released from the smelter.

The suit against the Anaconda Company has been the longest and most expensive litigation ever started in Montana. On one side are 108 farmers, representing 50,000 acres, several thousand head of live stock, improvements, water rights and all equipment. On the other side is the Anaconda Copper Mining Company with its plant representing an investment of $2,000,000 and indirect employment of the mines of Montana, the smelting industry of western Montana, a considerable extent, the shipment of freight amounting to millions of tons yearly, the business of Butte, Anaconda and many smaller places, which are almost exclusively dependent upon the operation of the smelter.

The suit was brought in May, 1905. Three weeks ago in the Federal Court Judge Hunt rendered a decision denying the application for an injunction closing the smelter. The finding of the court was that there had been some damage from arsenic in the vicinity of the Washoe smelter, but no appreciable damage from sulphur. The decision of the court, in effect, was that the damage that would be done by closing the smelter would be so vastly greater than any damage sustained by the farmers that equity and the general will would prevent the injunction. The present hearing and those that are to follow will be directed toward determining if conditions regarding the escape of arsenic can be improved by the installation of some method at the smelter.

The interests of the nation are involved in the welfare of this army of children no less than in our great material affairs.

The keynote of the conference was expressed in these words:

"Home life is the highest and finest product of civilization. Children should not be deprived of it except for urgent and compelling reasons."

Surely poverty alone should not disrupt the home. Parents of good character suffering from temporary misfortune, and above all, deserving mothers fairly well able to work, but deprived of the support of the normal breadwinner, should be given such aid as may be necessary to enable them to maintain suitable homes for the rearing of their children. The widowed or deserted mother, if a good woman, willing to work and to do her best, should ordinarily be helped in such fashion as will enable her to bring up her children herself in their natural home.

Conclusions of Conference.

I transmit herewith for your information a copy of the conclusions reached by the conference, of which the following is a brief summary:

1. Home Care.—Children of worthy parents or deserving mothers should, as a rule, be kept with their parents at home.

2. Preventive Work.—The effort should be made to eradicate causes of dependency, such as disease and accident, and to substitute compensation and insurance for relief.

3. Home Finding.—Homeless and neglected children, if normal, should be cared for in families, when practicable.

4. Cottage System.—Institutions should be on the cottage plan with small units, as far as possible.

5. Incorporation.—Agencies caring for dependent children should be incorporated, on approval of a suitable state board.

6. State Inspection.—The state should inspect the work of all agencies which care for dependent children.

7. Inspection of Educational Work.—Educational work of institutions and agencies caring for dependent children should be supervised by state educational authorities.

8. Facts and Records.—Complete histories of dependent children and their parents, based upon personal investigation and supervision, should be recorded for guidance of child-caring agencies.

9. Physical Care.—Every needy child should receive the best medical and surgical attention, and be instructed in health and hygiene.

10. Co-operation.—Local child-caring agencies should co-operate and establish joint bureaus of information.

11. Undesirable Legislation.—Prohibitive legislation against transfer of dependent children between states should be repealed.

12. Permanent Organization.—A permanent organization for work along the lines of these resolutions is desirable.

1. Federal Children's Bureau.—Establishment of a federal children's bureau is desirable, and enactment of pending bill is earnestly recommended.

While it is recognized that these conclusions can be given their fullest effect only by the action of the several states or communities concerned, or of their charitable agencies, the conference requested me, in section 14 of the conclusions, to send to you a message recommending federal action.

fare of children and child life, and shall especially investigate the questions of infant mortality, the birth rate, physical degeneracy, orphanage, juvenile delinquency and juvenile courts, desertion and illegitimacy, dangerous occupations, accidents and diseases of children of the working classes, employment, legislation affecting children in the several states and territories, and such other facts as have a bearing upon the health, efficiency, character and training of children.

One of the needs felt most acutely by the conference was that of accurate information concerning those questions relating to childhood. The national government not only has the unquestioned right of research in such vital matters, but is the only agency which can effectively conduct such general inquiries as are needed for the benefit of all our citizens. In accordance with the unanimous request of the conference, I therefore most heartily urge your favorable action on these measures.

It is not only discreditable to us as a people that there is now no recognized and authoritative source of information upon these subjects relating to child life, but in the absence of such information as should be supplied by the federal government many abuses have gone unchecked; for public sentiment, with its great corrective power, can only be aroused by full knowledge of the facts. In addition to such information as the census bureau and other existing agencies of the federal government already provide, there remains much to be ascertained through lines of research not now authorized by law; and there should be correlation and dissemination of the knowledge obtained without any duplication of effort or interference with what is already being done. There are few things more vital to the welfare of the nation than accurate and dependable knowledge of the best methods of dealing with children, especially with those who are in one way or another handicapped by misfortune; and in the absence of such knowledge each community is left to work out its own problem without being able to learn of or profit by the success or failure of other communities along the same lines of endeavor. The bills for the establishment of the children's bureau are advocated not only by this conference, but by a large number of national organizations that are disinterestedly working for the welfare of children, and also by philanthropic, educational, and religious bodies in all parts of the country.

I further urge that such legislation be enacted as may be necessary in order to bring the laws and practices in regard to the care of dependent children in all federal territory into harmony with the other conclusions reached by the conference.

Safeguarding Children.

1. That the approval of the board of charities be required for the incorporation of all child-caring agencies, as well as amendments of the charter of any benevolent corporation which includes child-caring work, and that other than duly incorporated agencies be forbidden to engage in the care of needy children.

2. That the board of charities, through its duly authorized agents, shall inspect the work of all agencies which care for dependent children, whether by institutional or by home-finding methods, and whether supported by public or private funds. The state has always jealously guarded the interests of children whose parents have been able to leave them property by requiring the appointment of a guardian, under bond, accountable directly to the courts, even though there be a competent surviving parent. Surely the interests of the child who is not only an orphan but penniless ought to be no less sacred than those of the more fortunate orphan who inherits property. If the protection of the government is necessary in the one case it is even more necessary in the other. If we are to require that only incorporated institutions shall be allowed to engage in this responsible work, it is necessary to provide for public inspection, lest the state should become the unconscious partner of those who either from ignorance or inefficiency are unsuited to deal with the problem.

I deem such legislation as is herein recommended not only important for the welfare of the children immediately concerned, but important as setting an example of a high standard of child protection by the national government to the several states of the union, which should be able to look to the nation for leadership in such matters.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

The White House, February 15, 1909.

With the message, the president sent to congress the full text of the proceedings of the conference. The recommendations of importance made are dealt with in the communication of the president. A point the conference was especially anxious to emphasize was that "the sending of children of any age or class to almshouses is an unqualified evil, and should be forbidden everywhere by law, with suitable penalty for its violation."

Gold Sweats.

Gold in transit by sea "sweats," however tightly it may be packed. It is usually sent in stout kegs, and squeezed in as tightly as possible; but there is a regular allowance for loss by attrition upon the voyage, and in the course of years this loss to the commercial world amounts to a large sum.

Whole Race Condemned.

A native of Annam, Indo-China, sentenced in Paris for theft, wrote the following apology to his employer: "All Annamites, whether emperors, mandarins, secretaries, literary men, and others, are born thieves. It is a grave and deadly complaint, and there is no cure for it. I know people do not like thieves in France, but it cannot be helped."

EXTRA ENGINES ON PASSENGER TRAINS

Passenger Trains on North-Western Road Had Two Engines to Take Them Through to Their Destination.

When winter's stormy blasts begin to blow and the flakes of snow start to fly, the railroads prepare for a blocking of traffic and put extra engines on all important trains and see that their snow plows are in working order. Also, if a big storm is predicted, orders are sent out annulling all trains of freight except those which carry perishable freight. That is, all goods except provisions, eggs and property which a wait of a day or so will spoil, are held over until a clear track to the destination is assured and the storm has passed. While the storm Saturday night and yesterday was not enough to block traffic or hinder trains to any extent, all of the night passenger trains through here last night on the North-Western road had an extra engine to help get the trains through in time. The reason for this mostly is that the winds blowing so strongly somewhat retard the progress of the trains, and an extra pressure of steam must be kept up to keep the cars in the train warm. An engine may be able to get through without breaking down, but an extra engine helps it and takes a part of the strain off the engine which is heating the cars.

NEW PACKING FOR THE JOURNAL BOXES

Wisconsin Division of North-Western Road Will Experiment with Substitute for Free Oil.

The use of free oil in the journal boxes of cars has been tabooed by the officials of the Wisconsin division of the North-Western road and in its place a new packing especially prepared for the purpose will be used. The reason for the change is given that the free oil when improperly placed in the boxes with too much oil or too little waste has caused hot boxes to occur too frequently to eliminate this difficulty. The new packing will evidently contain some substitute for the free oil as the waste is still to be used. The trainmen will be supplied with two buckets, one for carrying a fresh supply of the packing and one for the waste that is taken when a new supply is put in. The buckets for the free oil will be discontinued and car inspectors along the line have received orders to issue no more of it. The buckets of the new packing will be carried in the baggage cars of passenger trains and in the cabooses of freight trains. Each train will be furnished with an adequate supply and when the fresh packing is used up trainmen can secure more by turning in an amount of waste equal to the packing which they receive. Vats for soaking the new material will be located in Chicago at the yards and at Erie street, and at Janesville. Implements consisting of a hook to remove the old packing and an iron to put in the new will be furnished to each crew.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Lucius Kennedy

From the home six miles north of the city funeral services for Mrs. Lucius Kennedy were conducted yesterday afternoon by Rev. J. W. Laughlin. After a singularly fine sermon by Mr. Laughlin, extolling the virtues of the deceased the remains were taken to Oak Hill for interment. Miss Bruce and Mr. J. E. Van Dusen sang for the services. Floral offerings from the friends of the deceased were in abundance. The pallbearers were: A. M. Hule, H. L. Maxfield, A. L. Maxfield, L. E. Whitney, L. M. Hyzer and Thomas Kennedy.

William Hughes

The remains of the late William Hughes arrived in Milton Junction from Minnesota Sunday morning at eight o'clock. This morning the funeral services were held from the Church of the Immaculate Conception in Milton Junction, Rev. McCarthy officiating. The remains were shipped to Janesville and interment was made in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

Herman Klein

At two o'clock this afternoon from the home of Henry Klein on West Milwaukee street, friends and relatives of Herman Klein gathered to pay their last respects to his memory. The services, short and simple, were conducted by Rev. J. H. Tippelt, who preached a funeral sermon, lauding highly the virtues of the young man. Strays of white and red roses and white and red pink carnations, and other beautiful floral decorations, including a broken wheel, sent by the Fireman's Relief association were heaped on the bier of the deceased. Besides the tributes sent by his many friends, his associates at the Spring Brook station and the Rock River Cotton company expressed their appreciation of the late fireman by sending flowers. All of the firemen that were able to were in attendance at the funeral. A number of people from out of town were also present. Arthur Ott, Philip Marzke, William Scott, Joseph Murray, Allen Pierce and Lawrence Cronin acted as pallbearers. The remains were laid to rest in Oak Hill cemetery.

A Remarkable Eczema Cure

NO MORE HOPELESS CASES OF THIS DREADED DISEASE.

Eczema has long been one of the most dreaded of diseases, not only from the suffering and humiliation it entails, but also because of the difficulty hitherto found in curing it. Doctores have failed, and the desperate patients have resorted to much-advertised "so-called" remedies, only to meet with disappointment. Now all this is changed.

A sure and speedy cure for eczema—absolutely unfailing, as thousands are ready to testify—has at last been found. Dr. Taylor's Eczema Remedy has established itself solely on its merits as an infallible blood purifier and skin cleanser. Its use has enormously increased within a brief period, as its efficacy has been learned.

For not alone is this remedy effective in the worst cases of eczema, but it is probably the quickest and surest remover of all skin blemishes, such as pimples, black heads, acne, herpes, rash, barber itch, etc., that has ever been discovered. Often one application, over night, clears the complexion.

A free descriptive booklet is issued by the Dr. Taylor Remedy Co., Philadelphia, and the remedy and booklet can be obtained at The Smith Drug Co. and at all first-class druggists.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 15.—Miss Lillie Winters, who was arrested in man's clothing on suspicion of being a bandit, and whose sex was discovered yesterday by detectives while she was in the central station, is now in the police matron's room, where she donned woman's clothing for the first time, she says, since she was a child.

She came to St. Louis in 1902 and worked as a man here ever since. She first worked for the American Rattan works for $3 a week; next ran a rope machine for the St. Louis Cordage Company; for a year hauled iron for the Union Iron foundry, then hauled for J. C. Donohue, railroad grading contractor, at St. Genevieve, Mo., for $25 a month; next she was a rivet heater for the Missouri Sheet Iron works here; handled iron and teamed for St. Louis architectural iron works for $12.50 a week, and last repaired shoes for a hardware store. She has been keeping company with a young girl for several months.

CIVIC ELECTIONS

Elections for officers for a city the size of Janesville should be most carefully attended to. Could partisan politics be eliminated it would be a good thing for the city. As they can not at this time then select the best men possible for the offices to be filled.

The effect of Mayor is important. It is not for a small body of citizens to get together and endorse a candidate with an idea of assuring his election. That is not all that is to be done. His fitness for the place he seeks must be demonstrated and the voters assured of a good and stable form of government.

Elections depend upon the will of the people. The citizen that a few men dictate to the citizen is a bad man in this day and age of free thought and free vote. It is to the voters that the candidates must appeal. They must show their fitness clean of any untoward elements of reformers or of the liberal element who want a wide-open town.

It is to be hoped that at the coming primaries that good honest and fearless men will be selected. Men of sterling worth and caliber whose sole claim to the office they desire is not for the furthering of personal ends and who as servants of the public seek to serve the public, not individuals who may have an axe to grind.

In the selection of aldermen the same care should be taken. Good, true men should be named who will honor the office and whose judgment on matters of municipal importance will not be biased by personal feelings or individual desires. Too much care can not be taken in this regard.

THE STEPHENSON AFFAIR

Senator Isaac Stephenson is to go to Madison to attend the sessions of the investigating committee that plan to probe into his expenditure of money at the primary election. One of the important features of the Stephenson affair has become one of national importance. The reputation of the candidate of the people at the first real test of the primary election law is being watched with interest the nation over.

Senator Stephenson and his followers can not be accused of whining when they expose the rottenness of the machine they have so long financed, but their stories are a surprise to many who believed the reformer preached by La Follette was the Simon pure article, and not a gilded sham.

Stephenson's reputation by the La Follette host in the legislature will have its lasting result on the future politics of the state. The influence it would have on coming elections and in future legislatures. It is an epoch-making play on the part of a reforming politician and his crew of political tricksters.

It did not start out to be such. It was harmless enough in the beginning. The opposition was not organized, but soon the different elements were united and the result is to be seen in the tally ballots for United States Senator taken in joint session and ruled over by the "official" mouthpiece of La Folletteism—La Follette's Standard.

No one can say "I told you so," for no one expected such open ingratitude on the part of La Follette. Ingratitude was talked of by the defeated candidates after the primary—one of them went so far as to write personal letters to members of the legislature.

but no one really expected the senior Wisconsin Senator to openly oppose his old friend and benefactor.

This is the genuine surprise to the state. This is the problem that men who have supported reform in the past are now faced with. Not the ingratitude of La Follette in turning down the man who financed his campaign and furnished him the shadows of war to fight with, but his repudiation of the primary and open defiance of the law he created.

Whatever the result of the investigation, whether the Stephenson or the other man is elected to the United States Senate, the fact remains that the primary law is absolutely void unless it favors the man who created it. Built upon the plea of fighting the old party machine that ruled the state wisely and well for years, the new faction of republicans gained control of the state and then proceeded to enact a law to perpetuate their power.

On its first trial for selection of United States Senator it did not prove as successful from their own personal standpoint as they desired and now comes its repudiation. The voters of the state have exchanged one boss for another, have thrown off the old man of the son as old Shabaz, only to be again grasped by another "old man" who by his voice from Washington seeks to throttle the will of the people under the cloak of alleged misconduct.

"As Abraham Lincoln he never forgot that he was president; as president he never forgot he was Abraham Lincoln." This was one of the most fitting tributes ever paid to the dead president and was heard yesterday by Mr. Peck's address at the Myers Theatre. It is a sentence that will live for years and one which the Janesville persons who heard it will never forget.

Taft has left the sunny south and started for Washington. His trip to Panama has been one which will add him materially in handling this important question during his term as president and his visit in the south has not only left pleasant memories but done much to unite the north and the south together once more.

Nothing more has been said lately of Roosevelt and his coming African hunt. The President still wears the toga of President and still hands out hot shots at congress, so that the press is too full of his own personal warfare to pay attention to what might happen over in Africa when he does arrive on the field of campaign.

The legislature meets again tomorrow when another vote will be taken on the Senate floor. Little change is expected as the investigation which will clear away the groundless charges against Stephenson is about to begin and there are members who will wait for this report before casting their deciding ballots.

The legislature is still debating with itself whether to have that inquiry or not. It will probably decide to have it and the taxpayers of the state will pay one hundred dollars a day for five weeks so that the personal spite and ingratitude of one man can be satisfied.

The Milwaukee Sentinel is going to make Milwaukee famous by leading an all-day Sentinel-Morning, nine o'clock, ten o'clock, eleven o'clock, and so on at fifteen minutes. Certainly the Cream City can expect some startling features in the near future.

Taft has won the south with his manner of hearty acceptance of every kind of gastronomical feast that have been imposed upon him. He will go into the Presidential chair with a solid south behind him approving of every act of his term as President.

There are many who hold that prize-fighting is not a brutal sport. Well, the manner in which Jeffries is fighting his battles these days certainly go to prove this statement. But it is degrading, to say the least.

The common council meets tonight to discuss matters of importance to the voters and taxpayers of the city. The council can do a great deal of good and can also do considerable damage to business interests by promiscuous business of city affairs.

The Free Press is still explaining its attitude towards La Follette. It is not necessary for it to do so for the benefit of the general public, as La Follette has explained his own attitude so fully that even those who run may read.

So Knox has not everything smooth for his cabinet job despite the fact Taft wants him badly enough to seek to have congress make a special law if necessary, to admit him into full membership.

Politics have warmed up considerably in Janesville and it is to be expected from now on until the primaries in March there will be something doing every minute.

Some people say that this winter weather with lots of snow has only come so that the average business man can have the exercise of cleaning off his walk.

There are many candidates for the office of city clerk in the field and some of them are bound to be lost sight of in the wild scramble for office.

INDIAN DIVORCES.

The Indians of South Dakota have cheerfully accepted some of the consequences of our civilization.

Among these are the Indian man's divorce laws, which the Indian cherishes as a means of culture and uplift.

A correspondent tells of a Sioux chief who walked into a lawyer's office at Chamberlain demanding a divorce. He wore a huge sombrero, greasy and dirty, with a pair of overalls clapping about the ankles and a blue checked cotton jumper soiled by weeks of wear.

The Sioux, unable to speak English, made known his desires through an interpreter. He said his squaw had six husbands previously to marrying him.

The lawyer filed an application for divorce on the plea of "incompatibility."

Eagle Boy hoped the lawyer would hurry, as he had already selected a new wife—the squaw of another Indian who had applied for a divorce.

When he got tired of the new wife, he volunteered the information, he would get another in the same manner.

The smiles of Eagle Boy plainly indicated that he thought the whole procedure a lot of good fun.

Formerly when an Indian grew tired of his squaw he sold her to some one else for a pony or a blanket or a bag of flour. Now he is civilized. He consults a divorce lawyer—and sells her just the same.

The marriage custom is also changed. The buck selects his wife according to tribal precedent, but immediately starts with her for the nearest justice of the peace or missionary and gets the sanction of the law. Marriage or divorce, it is all the same to the discriminating aborigine.

Lo, the poor Indian, is up to date. The tribes, it is said, point with pride to young braves who have had four or five wives and been freed from them by law.

And why not? The smart set of the east find the Dakota divorce statutes convenient to them and travel long distances to avail themselves. The Dakota Indian is fortunate in having the courts close at hand.

Is not "incompatibility" as trying in a topee as in a brownstone front on Fifth avenue?

If the white man makes a mockery of marriage, what can he expect from a half tame savage?

IS LICENSE TO BE AN ISSUE IN THIS CAMPAIGN?

MEETING SCHEDULED FOR TONIGHT TO DISCUSS MATTER.

GENERAL POLITICAL TALK

John C. Nichols Has Not Withdrawn from Democratic Race for Mayoralty.

Is the license question to be a part of the municipal election campaign this spring? This is the question heard on the streets today. It is known that invitations have been sent out to thirty business and professional men for a session this evening in the office of A. E. Matheson, at which this question is to be brought up.

One gentleman who had received a card inviting him to the gathering said this morning: "I do not know all that is going to be discussed tonight, but the license question and whether we shall vote on license or no-license at the coming spring election I think will be one of the important matters talked over."

"I am not prepared to say what will be done, however. The meeting is called to discuss municipal affairs and the selection of the best men for office at the coming election."

"The idea of the gentlemen promoting the affair is to make it a distinct issue aside from any other movement that has been started before, it is not a revival of the municipal league or of the anti-saloon league."

When asked if the gathering would not endorse a candidate for Mayor the gentlemen said that he thought they would agree to support William P. Carle and they might possibly also name other candidates for other offices whom they would agree to support.

The list contains thirty names and on it are members of both of the leading political parties in the city, making it a citizens' movement as far as possible.

In order to bring the question of a vote for license or no-license before the citizens a petition containing a certain per cent of names of registered voters must be filed with the city clerk, so that the question may be placed on the ballots.

There is but little doubt that if it is decided at tonight's meeting to bring this issue up sufficient names can be secured to have it made an issue in the campaign and a hotly contested fight is to be expected.

Among other political matters, Mr. John C. Nichols, the democratic candidate for the nomination of Mayor, who was reported about to withdraw from the race owing to business matters, announced today that he had secured his connection with the Harrell & Echlin company and was still in the race for the democratic nomination.

He said: "I am still a candidate for the nomination. I covered my connections with the Harrell & Echlin company, by whom I have been employed for the past nine years, when the question of my candidacy was brought up and shall remain in the race."

"I leave their employment entertaining the highest regards for the members of the company and the most pleasant relations still existing with the individual members of it."

The only new development in the advertisement situation is the announcement that Samuel Grundy will fight for the democratic nomination in the Fourth Ward with Al. Knuth.

Nothing has been heard relative to William Carle's possible resignation as alderman in the first ward to make the run for Mayorality nomination on the republican ticket. Should this come two aldermen will have to be nominated in this ward as in the third where Alderman Watt's resignation left a vacancy.

David Holmes is mentioned as a possibility in the third ward as a candidate for alderman for the long term.

EDWARD H. BOWER IN TOILS AGAIN

Manager of College Inn at Madison Who Paid $200 Fine Here Last April Must Face Statutory Charge.

Edward Henry Bower, the pulchritudinous and elegantly attired individual who was arrested at the Park hotel in Janesville in company with Mrs. Adelle Parker on a night of April 13, 1908, and who pleaded guilty on April 14 to a statutory charge and paid a fine and costs amounting to $207.50, is again in the toils. For some time past he has been managing the College Inn restaurant at Madison and, it is alleged, living with a woman who pretended to be his wife.

Word has been received here from the Dane county sheriff's office to the effect that the guy youth has been placed under arrest there and that the little woman who stood by him here and is alleged to have provided the money to pay his fine, may be called upon to testify against him.

Only sympathy for her and the fact entertained by the court that she might be made to suffer more than the culprit, saved him from a trip from Janesville to Wausau. But he evidently forgot his promises to mend his ways as soon as he had made them. At any rate, the woman who says she is his wife and came from Milwaukee with him was left here. She now has an infant six months of age.

Madison Dispatch. Madison, Wis., Feb. 15.—Edward H. Bower, the proprietor of the College Inn boarding house here, was arraigned in the municipal court today, confronted by two women, each of whom claims him as her husband.

Wife No. 1 came up from Janesville and caused his arrest on Sunday. The charge is a serious one arising from relations with wife No. 2 while unduly with wife No. 1.

Wife No. 2 is Myrtle Eaton of Madison, a former millinery saleswoman. Neither woman in court today was able to produce a marriage certificate.

Carrie Schmidt is wife No. 1, from Janesville, where she has been living since her alleged marriage to Bower a year ago.

Bower pleaded not guilty and the case was continued until Friday.

PILGRIMS TO ALMENA SNOWBOUND FOR TIME.

Ex-Sheriff Ira Fisher and Ernest Moyer visited John Cantwell at Minneapolis.

All but two of the Janesville pilgrims to Almema, the headquarters of the "phoster" doctor—were snowed in and had a rough homeward trip. The two were Ex-Sheriff Ira Fisher and Ernest Moyer who got away early on Saturday and went to Minneapolis to speak a word of cheer in person to "Jack" Cantwell who has been so critically ill. They found him at the home of his sister, 3845 Elliot avenue, South, and apparently in better condition and spirits than he was when he left here nearly a fortnight ago.

Ex-Sheriff Fisher and Moyer arrived in Janesville yesterday morning on the "Limited," which was pulled by three locomotives a part of the way. Officer John Brown, Joseph L. Bear, Alvin Buchholz, Rufus Barr, Mrs. Grampke, Mrs. Rice, Miss Barr, and Mrs. Avery of Deloit, failed to make connections with this train owing to the fact that they were snowbound three times between Turtle Lake and Hudson. They did not get home here until noon, yesterday.

Miss Alice Hilly, who accompanied the Janesville party to Almema, went on to Minneapolis after receiving treatment.

Chorus Girls Call on Roosevelt.

The girls of the chorus of "The Girl Question" company, the big musical comedy which comes to the Music Theatre, on Thursday evening, Feb. 12, have the distinction of being the only chorus girls ever received by the President of the United States at a White House reception, and they were correspondingly proud of the honor.

"The Girl Question" company played Washington the week of Dec. 14th, and on the afternoon of Wednesday, December 16th, President Roosevelt, by arrangement with William E. Burlock, the business manager of the company, gave a reception for the entire chorus. This was part of what one of the Washington newspapers said about it:

"The chorus ladies, attired in their and adjectives, came down to 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue early, but did not thereby avoid the noisily rush, being compelled to wait in the automobile room for the exit of a few ordinary mortals like senators and representatives."

"The broilers, who are among the best advertised ladies in the production, went in to see Mr. Roosevelt first and the rest of the company waited according to size, most of them looking nervous and a bit frightened."

FORTY YEARS AGO

Jamesville Daily Gazette, February 15, 1869.—Badly Burned.—A man named Lorenzo Cramer was badly burned on one foot, Saturday afternoon last, in the foundry of the Rock-River Iron Works. He was engaged in handling liquid iron, when by some means, it ran into one of his boots, burning his foot badly. A disability of several weeks will be the result of the accident.

RAINEY PROMISES TO MAKE A HOT ANSWER

Illinois Congressman Declares He Will "Deliver the Goods" in Canal Charges.

Washington, Feb. 15.—Congressman Rainey of Illinois promises to stir up the house with another speech on the Panama canal purchase which he terms one of the most stupendous grabs ever undertaken. He says he isn't frightened by the speech of President-elect Taft, who, at Meridian, Miss., last Saturday warned his hearers not to be "led astray by buncombe speeches on the floor of the house."

"I will produce all of the proofs these gentlemen want before I finish with the Panama question," he said yesterday. "When my friends in the house get through shooting at me I'll answer their speeches. Up to date I have not heard a speech that requires an answer."

"In this connection I will say that it was well known in the house that I was going to Baltimore Saturday. It had been printed in the Washington papers. Yet the house met—met on Lincoln's birthday—and during my absence men said things about me which might not have been said had I been in the house."

"The president-elect, like the president, members of congress and newspapers who have attacked me because of my Panama canal charges—is but throwing dust over the real issue," Mr. Rainey continued.

"Neither Mr. Taft nor anyone else has as yet made a real answer to my charges concerning the spoliation scheme now being attempted upon the isthmus of Panama. They have overlooked the real issues and instead have come forward as mere character witnesses for men who are the cause of the most stupendous grab ever undertaken. I have made no attack upon the Panama canal project itself. I am in hearty sympathy with it. When I make my final speech on the floor of the house, I shall not make an apology to President-elect Taft, Mr. Crenshaw, Mr. Taft or anyone else. I can deliver the goods and will do so."

WILL START FIGHT TO MAKE KENTUCKY DRY

Anti-Saloon League and Temperance Forces Want Special Session of Legislature.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 15.—Kentucky, second producing liquor state in the union and up to this time unseated by a state-wide prohibition fight, will be the battlefield for the declaration of total prohibition from to-morrow forward.

The Anti-Saloon league and kindred temperance forces will meet in Louisville, and the upshot of the meeting will undoubtedly be the passage of resolutions calling on Gov. Augustus E. Wilson to summon the legislature in extra session for the consideration of a state-wide bill, or for uniform county option embracing cities of the first and second classes.

Wilson has heretofore declared that he would not call the legislature extraordinarily unless a crisis impended and it is not believed that he will yield to the demand of the temperance people at this time.

The chief interest point of the convention beginning to-morrow is a speech to be delivered by E. C. O'Rear, the retiring chief justice of the Kentucky court of appeals, who has previously declared in favor of total prohibition for the state and nation even to the abrogation of consumption, purchase and manufacture of whiskey.

O'Rear is a prominent Republican and Wilson was elected on the standard of that party. But four counties in the state are entirely wet at present.

AFTER SUFFERING TEN YEARS

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

MAHLTON, N.J.—I feel that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has given me new life. I suffered for ten years with serious female troubles, inflammation, ulceration, indigestion, nervousness, and could not sleep. Doctors gave me up as they said my troubles were chronic. I was in despair, and did not care whether I lived or died, when I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; so I began to take it, and am well again and relieved of all my suffering.—Mrs. Givener Jomay, Box 30, Marlton, N.J.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and is the only medicine for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

SCIENCE AND INVENTION.

GRACE WITH LEVEL

Carpenter Can Determine at a Glance Proper Position of the Brace.

A novel arrangement of a level on a carpenter's brace has been designed by this countryman. In operating a brace and bit the carpenter has no means of ascertaining whether the hole he is boring is exactly at right angles to the wood or not. He must depend upon his practical eye. Naturally the hole must be drilled correctly. In the brace shown in the illustration a spirit level, or other level, is attached close to the handle. The carpenter is thus able to tell at a glance whether or no the brace is exactly in the proper position. Where the screws are to be set in the wood at an angle other than at right angles, the position of the brace can be instantly determined by reference to the level. This attachment should also prove of inestimable value to cabinetmakers, where screws, etc., must be placed accurately.

PEELS VEGETABLES

Apparatus Removes Dirts of Skin, Which Water Washes Away.

Machines for peeling potatoes and similar vegetables have been supplied in hotels, restaurants, cafes, etc., for some time, depending with hand labor for the purpose. These machines, being large and of complicated construction, are naturally a burden for ordinary household use. A British inventor has overcome this objection in the vegetable-peeling apparatus shown here, which is exceedingly simple in operation. It consists of a tank or trough for holding water, the latter entering through a supply pipe in the front and drained through an outlet at the bottom. Journaled in the tank is a cylindrical receptacle having a roughened surface. The potatoes are placed in this receptacle, and by operation of the crank are subjected to a continuous rubbing motion, the cylinder moving on a spiral pipe, the vegetables turning over and over, rubbing against each other, and also against the roughened walls of the cylinder. The water which enters the tank is also stirred up by the rotation of the cylinder. A few dozen turns of the crank are sufficient to peel and clean a peck or two of potatoes.

DARNING BY MACHINERY

Improved Needle Attachment Helps in a Darning Needle Attachment Which Fits Any Sewing Machine. It Does the Work in a Remarkably Short Time, and There is no Fuss in a Wonderful Short Space of Time. A Hole in a garment which would require a half hour's time by handwork may be done in two minutes, therefore we do not exaggerate when we say it is an absolute necessity in every household.

In attaching the darning machine the foot of the machine is removed and the article to be darned is stretched between two loops, similar to embroidery hoops. It is especially valuable for darning lace, curtains and table linen, as well as stock hose, undergarments, etc. Darning can now be accomplished by those with poor eyesight, as there is nothing complicated about the little apparatus and one threading of the needle enables one to darn continuously.

AUTOMATIC FIRE KINDLER

Opens Draft on the Kitchen Range at a Prearranged Moment.

Who shall be first out of bed in the morning to shut up the kitchen fire? This lovely problem has been solved by a little contrivance which is called the automatic fire kindler. It is a small clockwork device which is attached to the kitchen range. It is set to open the draft at a prearranged moment, say at 7 o'clock in the morning. The kindler is also connected with the gas supply, so that when the draft is opened the gas is automatically ignited, and the fire is kindled. This is a very convenient and safe device, and is especially useful in the case of the elderly or infirm.

OPENS DRAFT AUTOMATICALLY.

shown in the accompanying illustration it is connected to a small clock, the latter being set to the hour when it is desired to have the fire kindled. At the prearranged moment a spring releases a small weight, pulling a chain attached to the lever controlling the draft. The latter is thus opened, causing the fire to come up and be ready for cooking when the housewife reaches the kitchen. The apparatus is also arranged to kindle a number of matches are secured by a plate in front of the open grate. When the lever is released, the matches are caused to ignite, the flame readily reaching the paper in position in the range.

High noon, trembling and aching. "Hardly $10," he answered. Harry considered hastily. He was almost penniless. Nearly all his share of the strike had gone to repay the forged draft. "I have no ready cash," he said, "but the night we played in the chapel I left a thousand dollars in my study safe. I have not been there since." He took pencil and paper from his pocket and wrote down some figures hastily. "Here is the combination. You must try to get that money."

"Wait," he added as Hugh's hand was on the latch. He must risk nothing. He could make assurance doubly sure. "A half mile from the foot of the mountain, where the road comes in from Funeral Hollow, wait for me. I will bring a horse there for you."

Hugh crushed the paper into his pocket and opened the door. "I'll wait," he said. He darted out, slipped around the corner of the cabin and stealthily disappeared.

Harry sat down upon the doorstep. The strain had been great. In the re-wait for you there, Miss Holme. She thanked him with a grateful look, and as he vanished, Harry took her hand and kissed it. He longed to take her in his arms.

"I heard of it only at noon," she began, her voice uncertain. "I was afraid they would not let me see you, so I went to Mr. Felder. They were saying on the street that he had offered to defend you."

"I had not been here an hour when he came," he said.

"I know you have no money," she went on. "I know what you did with the gold you found. And I have begged him to let me pay for any other counsel he will name. I have not told him what I am far from poor and that nothing counts beside your life. He says you have forbidden him to do this— forbidden him to allow any help from any one. Hugh, Hugh! Why do you do this? The money should be yours, not mine, for it was your father's. It is yours, for I am your wife!"

He kissed her hand again without answering.

"I won't let a right now to be at your side? Mayn't I tell them?"

He shook his head. "Not yet, Jessien."

"I must obey you," she said, with a wan smile, "but I would share your shame as proudly as your glory! You are thinking me weak and despicable, perhaps, because I wanted you to go away. But women are not men, and I— I love you so, Hugh!"

"I think you are all that is brave and good," he protested.

"I want you to believe," she went on, "that I knew you had done no murder. If an angel from heaven had come to declare it I would not have believed it. I only want now to understand."

"What do you not understand?" he asked gently.

She half turned toward the door as she said, in a lower key: "After you had gone many things came back to me that seemed strange—something curious in your manner. You had not seemed wholly surprised when I told you you were accused. Why did you shut the cabin door and speak so low? Was there any one else there when I came?"

He averted his face, but he did not answer. She was treading on wear ground.

"My horse came back this afternoon," she continued. "He had been ridden hard in the night, and his flanks were cut cruelly with a whip. You did not use him, but some one did."

She waited a moment. Still he made no reply.

"I want to ask you," she said abruptly, "do you know who killed Dr. Morgan?"

His blood chilled at the question. He looked down at her speechless. "You must let me speak," she said. "You won't answer that. Then you do know who really did it. Oh, I have thought so much since last night! For some reason you are shielding him. Was it the man who was in the cabin—who rode my horse? If he is guilty, why do you help him off and so make yourself partly guilty? The whole town believes you are guilty—I see it in all their faces. They are sorry, many of them, for they don't hate you as they did, but they think you did it—even Mr. Felder, though I have told him what I suspect and though he is working now to defend you!"

"Jessien," he urged, "you must trust me and have faith in me. I know it is hard, but I can't explain to you! I can't tell you—yet—why I do as I am doing, but you must believe that I am right."

"You speak as if you were sorry for me," she said, "and not for yourself. Is it because you know you are not in real danger—that you know the truth must come out, only you can't tell it yourself or tell me either? Is that it?"

"It is not that, Jessien," he said gravely. "You must not fear for me—for my life. Try to believe me when I say that some time you will understand and know that I did only what I must."

"Will that be soon?" she asked.

"I think it may be soon," he answered.

Her face lighted. The puzzle and dread lifted. "Oh, then," she said, "oh, then, I shall not be afraid. I cannot share your thoughts nor your secret, and I must rebel at that. You mustn't blame me—I wouldn't be a woman if I did not—but I love you more than all the world, and I shall believe that you know best, Hugh," she added softly, "do you know that—you haven't kissed me?"

Before her upturned, pleading eyes and trembling lips the iron of his purpose bent to the man in him, and he took her into his arms.

Chapter 26

At the sound of steps in the hall corridor and the harsh grating of the key in the lock, Harry rose hastily from the iron cot whereon he had been sitting and took a step forward.

For two days after his arrival he had hung about outside the town in a fever of impatience, for though he had readily ascertained that the premises were unoccupied, the first night he had been frightened away by the two men's scrutiny of his policeman, and on the next he had been unable to force the door. That morning he had secured a skeleton key, and now the weather was propitious for his purpose.

After a moment's reconnoitering he scaled the frost-fretted iron pillars and gained the shelter of the porch. He tried the key anxiously. To his relief, it fitted. Another minute and he stood in the study, the door locked behind him, his veins beating with excitement.

Crouching down before the safe, he took from his pocket the paper upon which was written the combination.

Some persons seem to have opened more eyes than others, they see with such force and distinctness; their vision penetrates the tangle and obscurity where that of others fails like a spent or impotent bullet. How many eyes did Gilbert White open? How many did Henry Thoreau? How many did Audubon? How many does the hunter, watching his sight against the keck and alert sense of a deer or a moose, or fox, or a wolf? Not outward eyes, but inward. We open another eye when we see beyond the first general feature or outlines of things—when we grasp the special details and characteristic markings that this mask covers. Science confers new powers of vision. Whenever you have learned to discriminate the birds, or the plants, or the geological features of a country, it is as if new and keener eyes were added.—John Burroughs.

They were going to the theater. He had reached home at 6:30 o'clock, and an hour later was ready to start. There was just time to reach the playhouse by eight. She had had nothing to do all afternoon except to dress, yet it was 8:15 when she came from her room with her hat and coat on.

"I'm afraid we shall be late," she said.

"You look so lovely," he replied, kissing her, "that it would have been worth waiting another hour for you."

No, they were not bride and bridegroom. They had been married ten years. But what is the use of telling you any more? As you can see by this sample, you wouldn't believe it, anyway.
